Created in 2013, the Council for Excellence in Teaching and Learning (CETAL) replaces the Mellon Center Advisory Committee and absorbs the teaching and learning functions of the now discontinued Teaching and Learning Round Table (TLTR). The central mission of the CETAL is to support teaching and learning at IWU by fostering pedagogical development of IWU faculty. The council advises the Associate Dean on matters related to teaching and learning and is key in coordinating pedagogical initiatives with other bodies such as Curriculum Council (CC), Faculty Development Committee (FDC), the Writing Program, the Assessment Committee, and the Council on University Programs and Policies (CUPP).

[Became an Elective Committee at the December 1, 2021 Faculty Meeting]

The Council for Excellence in Teaching and Learning serves to support teaching and learning at IWU by fostering the pedagogical development of faculty. Its functions include identifying high-impact teaching methods and best practices in teaching and learning, organizing and coordinating workshops and faculty development initiatives pertaining to pedagogy, coordinating with the Center for Engaged Learning leadership on matters related to student engagement and success, among other activities. CETAL will also advise the Associate Dean of Curriculum and Instruction on matters related to teaching and learning.

[n.b., Up until 2022, CETAL primarily organized faculty development workshops. This activity increased during the pandemic and, with the changes in Academic Affairs which created two Associate Dean positions, the Council also became responsible for making recommendations about the use of Faculty Development Grants.]

We strive to hold Illinois Wesleyan and each other accountable to our mission that values diversity, equity, and inclusion through programming and open dialogue at all levels. We will support our students of color as they pursue their academic and career goals by creating networking and funding opportunities that traditionally have not been accessible to all.

This is an interdisciplinary' student-run academic journal. With philosophy as its fundamental base, it covers a myriad of topics, including the social sciences, the natural sciences, current events, culture, and art. Its goal is to bring intellectual thought into the mainstream environment of Illinois Wesleyan University, and thereby set an intellectual standard for students, professors, and publications alike.

11 - 2/38 : Tributaries 2001-Spring 2018; missing Fall 2009. [Archives contains all issues available per the English Dept. as of fall 2016.] (Range 1:1)

Tributaries is the creative arts journal of IWU that publishes a book of student poetry, short fiction, art, photography, and music every semester. "Tributaries is Illinois Wesleyan University's journal of fine arts, celebrating the strongest and most original work being created by IWU students" (v.4:no.2)

Ekin, Larry '76 (4 folders) [Student Life, study abroad]
This collection includes 4 folders on Student life at IWU and Professional reports and documents on Humanitarian work.
Larry Ekin has donated his personal collection of materials that relate to his student activism at IWU during the early 1970's and his professional life in International Affairs. Included in his student documents are his application and correspondence to be a conscientious objector and his involvement in the peace movement on campus. In his professional life he worked with organizations that focused on human rights for areas of conflict. Included is a rich context in Larry's own words that describes the meaning and gives a larger insight to the times of these materials.
